Definition Guidelines:

Novice: You are relatively new to photography, the majority of your time is shooting on Full-Auto Mode, in Aperture Priority or Shutter Priority; you may know some of the rules of photography and may or may not know about the exposure triangle; you take a lot of pictures but you don't know why one photo looks the way it does and others don't; you want to learn more

Intermediate: You know not to use full auto mode; you stopped using pop-up flash, you are starting to master the photographic basis and lean more about your equipment, you are taking some great photos and you know why; you look back at your photos from a year ago and wonder why you liked them so much; you go out for the sole simple purpose of taking photos.

Advanced: You know pretty much everything there is to know about your camera such as white balance and exposure; you've moved onto more advanced techniques which challenge you further; you've found your niche and you've started to excel in it; you know what makes a great photo but are still open to constructive criticism and critique.
